FURTHER SOCIOLOGICAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO FAMILY PLANNING RESEARCH

DONALD J. BOGUE (editor)

Reports of research on social psychological and sociological aspects of family planning.

Each of the selections in this monograph represents a provocative contribution to the growing body of theory and knowledge concerning the processes by which couples arrive at a decision to adopt contraception and populations reduce their birth rate.

DIFFERENTIAL CURRENT FERTILITY IN THE UNITED STATES

LEE JAY CHO, WILSON GRABILL and DONALD J. BOGUE

Assisted by MARIA DAVIDSON and ELIZABETH J. BOGUE

The "own children" method of measuring current fertility, developed by Wilson Grabill and Lee Jay Cho, is shown to be a powerful tool for the study of fertility differentials. Using this technique, a special retabulation of the 1960 census materials on "own children" was performed, and the results are presented in this volume. Comparable data are introduced from the censuses of 1910, 1940, and 1950 to permit a study of trends. A full exposition of the methodology is presented.

This book destroys many current stereotypes about fertility differentials in the U.S. and reveals others not widely known. It is a benchmark for the study of fertility during the 1970's.

FAMILY PLANNING RESEARCH AND EVALUATION MANUALS

Seven "Family Planning Research and Evaluation Manuals" have been prepared for use by demographers and social researchers interested in measuring fertility and evaluating the impact of family planning programs upon fertility and upon the contraceptive motivation-attitude-knowledge-adoption of the population. These are technical publications, focused upon research methodology. They have been used as training materials in a series of workshops held overseas. Additional manuals in this series are in preparation.

The manuals now available are:

METHODS OF FAMILY PLANNING

by GORDON PERKIN, M.D.

This set of manuals constitutes a complete course of programmed instruction for self-teaching. They are written for low-education family planning workers in developing countries, but are highly applicable for use in poverty programs in the U.S. These manuals were prepared for the Ghana National Family Planning Programme. With the kind permission of the sponsors and author they have been reprinted so that they may be available to interested specialists around the world. Set consists of four manuals and an examination.

A TEXTBOOK FOR FAMILY PLANNING FIELD WORKERS

by APRIL ALLISON ZAWACKI

Despite the fact that massive programs of family planning action are underway all over the world, until the appearance of this book there has been no comprehensive "textbook" that family planning field workers could study, either in conjunction with special training courses or "on the job" to improve their efficiency and effectiveness.

It is written in easy-to-read language that should make it useful even with trainees who have a highly limited educational background. It is profusely illustrated with photographs and illustrations (available Jan. 1, 1971).

SOCIAL CHANGE IN THE FAMILY

by JAN DIZARD

This is a final report and analysis of the well-known longitudinal study of the marital adjustment begun in 1939 by Ernest Burgess and Paul Wallin. It focuses primarily upon the third round of interviews, taken after the couples had been married for 15 years. Dr. Dizard began this analysis in 1963, working under the direction of Burgess. He explores the tendency for the level of marital adjustment to decrease with increasing duration of marriage.

CONTENTS

Chapter

1. Introduction
2. Patterns of Change: Growing Apart
3. Husband and Wife in the Community
4. Mobility, Occupational Roles and Changes in the Husband-Wife Relationship
5. Social Change in the Family

Appendix

Excerpts from review of Dr. Dizard's book in Social Forces for December, 1969:

"Finally, the answer to what happened to Professor Burgess' 1,600 couples is told in a clear, concise and interesting manner by Mr. Dizard. . . . This monograph is a must for all serious students of the American Family. . . . It is a most timely publication since so much in recent years has been written on the lower levels of American family life. It reminds the reader there is still a great middle class with some problems of adjusting to family living in a changing society."
